Technolution is a leading solutions provider integrating cutting edge technology in a 'fit-for-purpose' mission, providing critical solutions for its customers. As such security and network security are core values of the company. Besides mobility and energy, Technolution focus on defense, safety and security markets where Technolution deliver highly reliable embedded and ICT solutions to our customers. Together with our partners, we have both the knowledge and technology to protect our open society and to guarantee secure communication.

Technolution is the supplier for critical communications infrastructures, particularly mission-critical systems such as central switches for paging systems, for governments and private companies. Technolution maintains and renews amongst others parts of the P2000 paging network for the Dutch emergency services to make it last another decade.
